- Non-profit started by citizen-volunteers in 1976 with curbside collection of newsprint
- Evolved to single-stream processor focusing on waste diversion, innovative processing programs, developing local, regional and beyond partnerships in a wide-variety of areas/aspects.
- Own their own truck fleet for hauling: for example, specialty recyclables; food waste for compost.
- Education and community outreach are key programs: profits go back into the 'system' – K-12 schools including compost programs in schools, adult education (farmers' markets, festivals, zero waste events). Also, work with other communities to develop appropriate policies to implement local goals.
